Other than a honeymoon, there may be no vacation with higher expectations than a babymoon. The stakes for the best babymoon destinations are especially high—because, whether it's your first kid or your fourth, you'll want to squeeze every last drop of relaxation and exploration out of the trip before your world explodes with, well, diaper explosions.

And with Zika now less of a concern (but please, wear bug spray and speak to your doctor before booking travel plans!), the entire world is now your (pregnancy-safe equivalent of an) oyster. Just make sure to travel during the weeks your ob-gyn deems safe, which is generally the second trimester (or 14 to 28 weeks).

Where to go all depends on your travel style, budget, and how long you'd like to be away. Is cozying up for a romantic weekend getaway in a lodge your speed? Or are you more of an overwater-bungalow-in-the-Maldives type? We've done the research and compiled the best babymoon destinations from around the world for every type of trip and traveler, whether you're looking to go all out or stay on budget; fly halfway around the globe or keep it close to home.

As you ponder your dream trip (and the pregnancy-friendly shoes to pack), read on to discover 22 spots that are absolutely perfect for your pre-baby vacation.

Tuscany, Italy

Sure, you may not be able to partake in Tuscan wines during a babymoon, but we think the stellar cuisine, postcard-perfect rolling hills, and innumerable charming villages more than make up for it. In Tuscany, you can rent a car to hop from town to town, or, find a quaint villa-turned-hotel to make your home base. Our top pick in the area is the stunningly restored Borgo Pignano. Located just outside the walled town of Volterra, this uber-romantic property is made up of a number of spacious rooms, maisonettes, and villas, all of which are unique in their furnishings. After a day exploring the region, you can spend the afternoon poolside, or book a massage in the spa, which is located in a well house that has been there since medieval times. Bonus: this property is one of the most eco-friendly in Italy, and is a member of the prestigious Beyond Green portfolio of sustainable hotels.
