The best European wellness retreats for some much-needed R&R

Story by Amy Brewster • 21h

4) Borgo Pignano: For those looking for sustainable luxury

©Stefano Scata

Sustainability is the foundation of Borgo Pignano's excellence. The luxury countryside getaway sits on 750 acres of land and every inch is used to create a unique hotel experience. Wine from a private vineyard, beauty products made on site by a master herbologist, and a green Michelin star menu stocked with produce from Pignano's own vegetable garden – everything you could hope for is available in this insular, sustainable paradise. For years, artists from the Royal Drawing School have been inspired by the hotel's breathtaking vista and their attempts to capture it on canvas decorate every room. Watching the sun fall behind the medieval city of Volterra in the distance, it is hard to imagine a place better designed for a break in tranquility.
